It's easy to see why The British Virgin Islands are often referred to as "Nature's Little Secrets". The BVI abounds in areas of natural beauty. Many of the Territory's natural assets are safeguarded by the BVI National Parks Trust. The BVI National Parks Trust was established in 1961 and the territory's first national park, at Sage Mountain on Tortola was created three years later.

Tortola

Sage Mountain National Park: Declared as such in 1964. Sage Mountain is the oldest National Park in the BVI and has the highest point in all the Virgin Islands (1,716 feet above sea level).

There are several hiking trails that lead, not only to the peak, but also to a small rain forest sometimes shrouded in mist.

Mount Healthy National Park: Declared in 1983. The Mount Healthy Windmill is an outstanding symbol of the sugar plantation era in The BVI. It is the only one of its kind remaining in the entire British Virgin Islands.

The 18th century mill overlooks the north shore of Tortola, and apart from the Callwood Distillery in Cane Garden Bay is the only relic from a period when sugar was 'King'. The windmill was one of two types used in The BVI. The other mill was operated by mules, horses or oxen.

J.R. O'Neal Botanic Gardens: Declared in 1979. Named after the territory's leading conservationist, the J. R. O'Neal Botanic Gardens are a cool and peaceful refuge located in the center of Road Town. The Gardens feature a lush selection of exotic and indigenous plant life, including palms, orchids, cacti and local herbs. A pergola walk, lily pond, waterfall, tropical birdhouses and miniature rain forests are just a few more of the gardens' attractions.

The J.R. O'Neal Botanic Gardens are considered by many to be among the finest in the Caribbean.

While there are not fees to enter most of the National Parks, there is an entry fee of $1.00 per person to visit the Gardens. The Gardens are also great for wedding, wedding receptions and cocktails. Please call the National Parks Trust for further information and fees for special events. And on your next visit to the Botanic Gardens, please visit their gift shop to purchase national parks memorabilia. Donations are welcomed.

VIRGIN GORDA

The Baths: One of the most dynamic and frequently visited parks in The British Virgin Islands is The Baths. The Baths are a maze of granite boulders, some as large as 40 feet in diameter, with exotic pools and grottos formed by giant boulders along the southwest coast of Virgin Gorda.

The Baths can be accessed both by water and by land. There are several restaurants, facilities and concessions near by.

The Copper Mine National Park: The Copper Mine is one of Virgin Gorda's most impressive landmarks. It is the only one of its type in the entire English-speaking Caribbean and is a very important link to the island's past.

The current structures are the remains of a factory built in 1860 by experienced miners from Cornwall, England. On their arrival in 1838, these Englishmen brought modern techniques in mining, which they taught to the residents of Virgin Gorda.

There are several mineshafts in the area around the ruins. Some go as deep as 100 feet beneath the sea. An effort has recently been undertaken to preserve the mines, and BVI representatives hope to have the site recognised as a World Heritage Site.

Gorda Peak National Park: Gorda Peak is the highest point on Virgin Gorda and stands among 265 acres of Caribbean Dry Forest. Donated to the National Parks Trust by conservationist Lawrence Rockefeller in 1974, the park was to be kept by the Government as a nature preserve.

The plants exhibit signs of adaptation to the dry conditions, some with waxy leaves, which prevent water evaporation, while others have no leaves. Animal life is just as vibrant as the plant life. There are three species of tree frogs, which are found in the bromeliads in Gorda Peak. The most common of these is the Virgin Islands "Bo-peep," which gets its name from the sound it makes.

There are soldier crabs and several species of birds. Another unique feature of this park is that it is home to the world's smallest reptile, the Virgin Gorda Gecko. Directly below is North Sound with its surrounding islands.
